

RETIRED WORKERS

There are retired workers who are not yet tired to run a business they can fully control in their back-yard. For such, fish farming is most ideal as they can limit the farm size to what can be effectively managed by them. For sure, income generated from a small-scale fish farm can more than adequately cater for the needs of the retired worker and his immediate family.